

Write about the first day of school for a dragon.

Imagine your backpack suddenly talks to you—what does it say?

What would happen if your pencils started running away?

Write about a silly bus ride where the bus takes you somewhere unexpected.

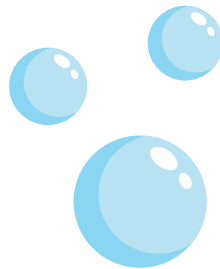

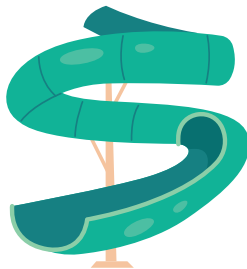

Imagine you are the teacher for a day—what would happen?

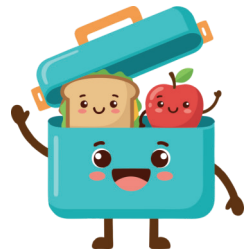

Write a story about a library where the books whisper secrets.

What would happen if the playground slides never ended?

Write about a storm that only rains bubbles.

Imagine you could freeze time on the last day of summer.

Write a story about a lunchbox that eats your food before you do.

What would happen if your shoes started dancing in class?

Imagine your school was built inside a tree.
