

Write a story about a flower that talks to you every morning.

Imagine you are a bee—what do you do all day?

Write about a picnic where the food comes alive.

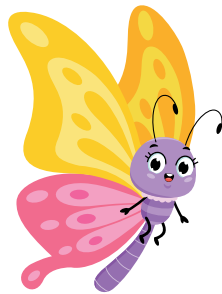

What would happen if spring never ended?

Write a silly story about a class field trip gone wrong.

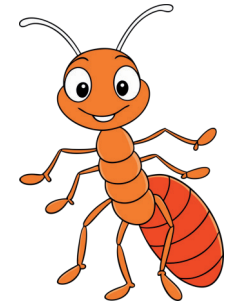

Imagine you could shrink small enough to live inside a bird's nest.

Write a story about a rainy day where the puddles are magical.

What do you think summer looks like from a butterfly's view?

Create a story about a family of ants who build a giant city.

Imagine you are a farmer—what happens on your busiest day?

Write about a silly parade that only uses animals.

What would happen if every flower in May bloomed candy instead of petals?
